BILL SMITH

Bill Smith has achieved success as a professional athlete, a businessman, and Mayor of Canada's fifth largest city. His accomplishments stem from:

- His passion for Canada, Alberta, and the Edmonton Capital Region
- His vision for Alberta's future and its potential
- His ability to think outside the box, and lead innovation within organizations
- His leadership, capacity for hard work, and commitment to teamwork

BUSINESS INNOVATOR & LEADER

(1960 - 1990) Bill Smith's competence as a business-person was demonstrated through the founding and growth of Tire Town. Beginning as a single store in rural Alberta, Tire Town became a retail force in Western Canada with three major distribution centres, four retread factories, 400 employees, sales of $95 million a year, and 50 stores (owned and affiliates). Tire Town's ability to win market share in a mature industry was a result of the innovations Bill Smith pioneered in areas of franchising, purchasing, and marketing.

At a time when tire recycling was unheard-of in North America, Bill Smith was a leading proponent for change. Working with the National Tire Dealers & Retreaders Association to lobby governments, Bill's efforts contributed substantially to the environmentally-responsible government-regulated programs that exist today in Canada and the United States.

(1990 - 1995) Bill Smith's ability to understand the changing nature of business and the opportunities of emerging technologies was evidenced in the creation of his second company - Alberta Supernet. Prior to 1991, internet service in Western Canada was limited. In 1991, Alberta Supernet was the first private company in Alberta to receive a license to market internet service. Between 1991 and 1995, Bill grew the business, serving large institutional and media customers in the Edmonton region. Alberta Supernet was sold in 1995.

COMMUNITY LEADER

Bill Smith's strong connection with Edmontonians began with his seven-year career as a professional football player with the CFL's Edmonton Eskimos. In addition to winning the Grey Cup and "All-Star" recognition, Bill learned the value of teamwork, leadership and perseverance from his professional athletic career.

Bill was mayor for a record 3-terms, between 1995 and 2004. As Mayor, Smith was known as "Booster Bill" for his efforts in promoting Edmonton as the "Greatest City in the Greatest Province in the Greatest Country."
