Life Lessons

These people need to learn a little humility, need to share their gifts with others, and need to learn to take more time out for fun.

Positive Tendencies

These are creative and powerful people. Leaders and rulers. People who originate concepts and plans. Movers and shakers. They emanate strong positive Yang energy, and this provides a foundation of greatness for them and others. Grand schemes are very much a part of their character, and all eyes tend to follow them. They are individuals who have that rare combination of charisma, vision, and strength to make things a reality. These are really significant people who truly have indomitable wills. This being the first hexagram, the origin, these people can be looked to as a center of amazing projects, ideas, and leadership. If focused on evolution, on society, and the common good, their dreams and goals will be remarkably fulfilled. Being the center, the one who leads and organizes others, brings these people real happiness. These are very well respected people for whom others would die. They are well loved, even beyond what can be expected, and have tremendous influence over others, which can be used to motivate and propel them forward.

Negative Tendencies

These people can sometimes be overbearing or even violent when crossed. They are capable of being unpredictable. They might have totalitarian tendencies and can be very inflexible. Bossy, they may have a "God-father" complex and be egocentric. Such people tend to have very little Yin energy, virtually no softness, and this can be hard for others to take day after day. They can be arrogant, impatient with "inferiors," and often have (for good or ill) a sense of their own "manifest destiny."
