

Harry Potter MadLib #2

(by Elanor Gamgee)

Taken from Chapter Five, "The Whomping Willow" in Harry Potter and the Chamber of Secrets

Ron (verb - past tense) , staring through the (noun) , and Harry looked around just in time to see a (noun) as thick as a (noun) (verb) into it.
The (noun) they had hit was (-ing verb) them.
Its (noun) was (verb, past tense) almost double and its (adjective) (plural noun) were (-ing verb) every inch of the (noun) it could reach.
" (exclamation) !" said Ron as another twisted (noun) (verb - past tense) a large dent into his (noun) ; the (noun) was now trembling
under a hail of blows from the (adjective) (plural noun) and a (noun) as (adjective) as a battering ram was (-ing verb)

furiously on the roof, which seemed to be (-ing verb) --

"Run for it!" Ron shouted, throwing his full weight against his (noun) , but next second he had been

(verb - past tense) (direction)

into Harry's lap by a vicious uppercut from another (noun) .

"We're done for!" he (verb - past tense) as the ceiling sagged, but suddenly the floor of the (noun) was (-ing verb) -- the (noun) had (verb - past tense) .

" (direction) !" Harry yelled, and the (noun) shot backward;

the (noun) was still trying to (verb) them;

they could hear its (noun) creaking as it almost (verb - past tense) itself up, lashing out at them as they sped out of reach.

"That," panted Ron, "was close. Well done, (noun) - "

The (noun) , however, had (verb - past tense)

the end of its tether. With two sharp (sound) , the (plural noun) flew open and Harry felt his

(noun) tip (direction) :

Next thing he knew he was sprawled on the damp

(noun) . Loud (sound) s told him that the (noun) was ejecting their (noun) from the (noun) ; Hedwig's cage flew through the air and burst open; she

(verb - past tense) out of it with an angry

(sound) and (verb - past tense) off toward the (building) without a backward look.

Then, (adjective) , (adjective) , and (adjective) , the (noun)

rumbled off into the darkness, its rear (plural noun)

(-ing verb) (adverb) .

"Come back!" Ron yelled after it, (-ing verb) his broken (noun) .

"Dad'll kill me!"

But the (noun) (verb - past tense) from view with one last snort from its (noun) .

"Can you believe our luck?" said Ron (adverb) , bending down to pick up (name) .

"Of all the (plural noun) we could have (verb) ,

we had to get one that (verb ending in "s") back."