Pink Slip Party in Toronto!

Pink Slip Party is a networking tool created for America's "pink slipped" by Carlos Gil, Founder and CEO of JobsDirectUSA.com. After being downsized by AIG in November of 2008, Carlos turned to online networking where he discovered a community of millions also laid-off before, and after, him. It was through daily online networking where Carlos became determined to "pay it forward" for America's unemployed shortly after his own layoff. As a result he created JobsDirectUSA.com as a resource for job seekers to search and apply for jobs and submit their resumes directly to thousands of job recruiters.

In early 2009, Carlos was introduced to the "Pink Slip Party" concept by PinkSlipMixers.com Founder Edwin Duterte. What started as a grassroots community based movement in Los Angeles, Edwin, and PinkSlipMixers.com, has helped thousands of job seekers connect directly with recruiters, and jobs, throughout the United States.

If you haven't heard of the phrase "Pink Slip Partying" or know what a "Pink Slip Party" is all about its okay, you are not alone.

A Pink Slip Party is an event aimed to bring together job seekers, typically in the few hundreds, with local area recruiters of companies that are looking to hire. Opposite of a traditional job fair, Pink Slip Parties take place at upbeat venues, loaded with casual networking minus the long lines and booths. Today Pink Slip Parties, once popular around the end of the "dot com" boom or immediately following 9/11, are back and in full force due to a 25-year high in unemployment popping up all over the United States, from New York to Los Angeles.

If you need a job, need to hire or simply want to network with hundreds of local professionals and have fun in a casual, relaxed environment this party is for you. This is not your typical job fair; it's far from it.
